Choice Poetry.

"They who Love shall meet again."

"They who love shall meet again,
Where the white clouds waft
Over the radiant, azure plain,
Arch'd smoothly under,
Where'er nature makes her bed,
Wade the night-rose overhead.

Down upon the ocean rim,
With the loved we're parted,
Watching o'er the waters, dim,
Wilt and we phoebhearted,
Oh! beyond the stormy ocean,
They who love shall meet again."

Over the golden drops of light,
From the angel's soft wings shaken,
In the violet wave of night,
On the shuddles sleep-tost waken,
With full many a spirit gem
Sparkling in the diamond.

It all who love rare, beneath the skies,
Beneath thy chosen, in paradise!"

A Dream of Early Youth.

Within my spirit's depths there lingers yet,

A sacred dream I never can forget,

A tale to men, they never shall mind,

Of all that sorrow hath my heart bereft,

One hope of other day to me is left,

Or all those visions bright forever known,

One blessed dream there still remains my own.

Enhanced still shuns a ray of sparkling light,

That's the darkness only seems more bright;

The hope of other days seems yet to beam

Upon me, when I think of that bright dream.

The last time his mantle of oblivion cast,

Over all the wild emotions of the past,

As faded leaves their fragrance oft return,

On my way it page it ever must remain.

The star that in my joyous childhood shone,

Shines yet, though now alas! it shines no more.

Forever in the records of the past,

Shall dwell that dream, the brightest and the last!

G E M.

There's not a breath, however rare,

But hath some little flavor.

To brighten up its solitude,

And seat the evening hour;

There's not a heart, however cast,

But grieves and sorrows down.

But hath some pleasure of the past.

To love and call his own.

A Young Man's Character.

No young man who has a just sense of his own value will sport with his own character. A watchful regard to his character in early youth will be of incalculable value to him in all the remaining years of his life. When tempted to deviate from strict propriety of deportment, he should ask himself, "Can I afford this? Can I endure hereafter to look back upon this?"

It is of amazing worth to a young man to have a pure mind; for this is the foundation of a pure character. The mind, in order to be kept pure, must be employed in topics of thought which are themselves lovely, chastened, and elevating. Thus the mind hath in its own power the selection of its themes of meditation. If youth only knew how durable, and how dismal is the injury produced by the indulgence of degraded thoughts—if they only realized how frightful were the moral depravities which a cherished habit of loose imagination produces on the soul—they would shun them as the bite of a serpent. The power of books to excite the imagination is a fearful element of moral death when employed in the service of vice.

The cultivation of an amiable, elevated, and glowing heart, alive to all the beauties of nature and all the sublimities of truth, invigorates the intellect, gives to the will independence of baser passions, and to the affections that power of adhesion to whatever is pure, and good, and grand, which is adapted to lead out the whole nature of man in those scenes of action and impressions in which his energies may be most appropriately employed, and by which its high destination may be most effectually reached.

The opportunities for exciting these faculties in benevolent and self-denying efforts for the welfare of our fellow-men, are so many and great that it is really worth while to live. The heart which is truly evangelically benevolent, may luxuriate in an age like this. The promises of God are inex-pressibly rich, the main tendencies of things so manifestly in accordance with them, the extent of moral influence is so great, and the effects of its employment so visible, that who-ever aspires after benevolent action and reaches forth for things that re-ally are for us, to the true dignity of his nature, can find free scope for his intellect, and all-inspiring themes for the heart.

Resolutions.

Never to resent a supposed injury till I know the views and motives of the author of it. Not on any occasion to relate it.

Always to take the part of an absent per-son who is censured in company, so far as truth and propriety will allow.

Never to think the worse of another on account of his differing from me in political and religious opinions.

Not to affect to be witty or to jest so as to wound the feelings of another.

To sit at cheerfulness without levity.

Never to count the favor of the rich by flattery either their vanities or their vices.

Difference in the Set of Tides.—Profes-sor Badde notes the following singular dif-ference in the motion of the tides in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. On our east coast, in the Atlantic, they flow from east to west; on the coast of Great Britain, from west to east; and on the Pacific their motion is circular, they sweep round by Asia, turn and flow back.

Pleasant.—To open your wife's jewel box and discover a strange combination in the motion of the tides in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. We know of nothing that makes an odd temperament feel more "airy."

PENNSYLVANIA, S. S.
In the name and by the authority of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

JAMES POLLACK, GOVERNOR.

A Proclamation.

FELLOW CITIZENS.—A public recognition of the existence of God, as the Creator of all things, and the giver of "ever good and perfect gift," with a humble acknowledgment of our constant dependence upon the providence of him, "who rules the affairs of Heaven and among the children of men," is alike the duty and the privilege of a free and Christian people.

"He has crowned the past year with his goodness and caused our paths to drop with fatness." He has blessed our country with peace. The union of the States, our free institutions, our Civil and Religious privileges, right of conscience and freedom of worship, have been continued and preserved. The great interests of Education, Morality and Religion have been encouraged and promoted. Science and Art advanced, Industry rewarded, and the moral and physical condition of the people improved.

The goodness of God has signally blessed our Commonwealth; War with its desolations, Famine and Pestilence with their horrors, have not been permitted to come near us; and whilst the ravages of disease and death have afflicted the citizens of other States, we have enjoyed the blessings of health, and unusual prosperity. The Seasons, in their annual round, have come and gone, "seed time and harvest," have not failed, smiling plenty cheers the husbandman; and, surrounded by the abundant fruits of Autumn, he rejoices in the rich rewards of his toil. "The pastures are clothed with flocks, the valleys also are covered over with corn, they shout for joy, they also sing."

Acknowledging with grateful hearts these manifold blessings of a benevolent Providence, we should "offer unto God thanksgiving and our vows unto the Most High."

Under the solemn conviction of the importance and propriety of this duty, and in conformity with the wishes of many good citizens, JAMES POLLACK, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby adjoint Thursday the 22d day of November next,

As a day of general thanksgiving and praise throughout this State; and earnestly implore the people, that setting aside all worldly pursuits on that day, they unite in offering thanks to Almighty God for His past goodness and mercy; and be-hed Him for a confirmation of His blessings.

Given under my Hand and the Great Seal of the State at Harrisburg, this twenty-second day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five, and of the Commonwealth the sixtieth.

BY THE GOVERNOR:

ANDREW G. CURTIN,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

The Pacific Railroad Disaster.

St. Louis, Nov. 5.—A train arrived here on Saturday with the bodies of the persons killed by the Pacific railroad disaster on Thursday last, together with those who were badly wounded. The whole number killed, as far as has been ascertained, is 22. It is impossible to estimate the number wounded, but scarcely a man on the train escaped injury. The number suffering from broken limbs and severe contusions will probably reach fifty. The bodies of the dead were buried yesterday, attended by an immense number of citizens. It appears the train had on board about 600 or 700 persons, including two military companies, the St. Louis Greys and the National Guards, and many of the most prominent citizens of St. Louis. The bridge—30 feet high—when it gave way, took down the locomotive, tender and eleven cars; and it is now said the river, into which they were precipitated, had a depth of 20 feet of water, at that point. Fortunately, before attempting to cross the bridge, some 150 of the passengers got out in order to inspect the structure, and observe the trial of the heavy train upon the timbers.

B. B. Dayton, one of the killed, was the law partner of Mr. Geyer, United States Senator; Mr. Blackburn, another, was a prominent lawyer, and a member of the city council; Mr. Butler, also killed, was a magistrate, well known in the west as a writer, and was 76 years of age; and Mr. Ables, Mr. Gray and Mr. Chouteau, likewise killed, were wealthy merchants, the latter one of the wealthiest citizens of St. Louis.

Doctors McDowell and McPherson were fortunately among the guests, and gave their best skill to the alleviation of the wretched sufferers. It was impossible, however, for them to apply bandages and re-set limbs under the circumstances. The accident occurred where no houses are to be seen—in a wild forest—and during the time a heavy storm of rain, accompanied with lightning and thunder of the most vivid description, fell without intermission.

Couriers were despatched forthwith to Hermann for another train, and in an hour or less the wounded were in comfortable cars on their way to the city. It was an awful spectacle—one that appalled the stoutest heart—the dead and dying lying without shelter, save that afforded by the hand of friendship or philanthropy, exposed to pitiless storm, and the wounded groaning from amid the ruins, and supplicating the succor of the more fortunate.

A Lady at the Storming of Sebastopol.
A letter has been received by her friends in this city, from the lady of commander D'Arriau, of the steamer Da Garde, of the allied fleet in the Black Sea. Captain D'Arriau is the son-in-law of Mr. William B. Le Conte, of this city; and both himself and lady are known to many of our city. This lady, who has her residence at Constantinople, becoming uneasy about her husband, determined to see him, if possible, and with this purpose went to Sebastopol, and was permitted to go on board the vessel he commanded. As fate would have it, the day she had chosen for the interview was the notable one of the bombardment of Sebastopol, and she was scarcely on board when the orders were received to commence the attack.

The situation was anything, but agreeable to a lady, but there was no escaping, and she was obliged to remain and witness the terrific scene from first to last. With shot and shells, and danger on every hand, the deafening roar of the cannon, the sky dark with clouds of smoke, the air freighted with the odor of battle, and the sea lashed to congealed fury by the storm of iron and leaden rain, one may be supposed to have formed a correct appreciation of the peculiar beauties of war. When the conflict was over the lady went ashore in company with others, and, while surveying the environs of the partially conquered strong hold, narrowly escaped a cannon ball that came whizzing past her with anything but a musical sound. Mrs. D'Arriau was, perhaps, the only lady who witnessed the bombardment of Sebastopol from shipboard. Our fashionably sensible ladies would hardly have encountered the danger even to visit their husbands, or survive the fearful shock of the battle.—Buf. Cour. Nov. 1.

Faithful Love.

An English paper announces the approaching marriage of Sir Thomas Townshend and Miss Louisa Gurney, of Norwich. Sir Thomas was in the battles of Alma and Inkermann, and greatly distinguished himself by his gallantry. At the battle of Inkermann he commanded a battery which contributed essentially to the defeat of the Russians. During that terrible fight a cannon ball carried away both his feet. Expecting to bleed to death, he refused to be carried to the rear, and directed his men to raise him upon a gun carriage and take him to the front, that he might see the issue of the battle; and in that position he continued coolly to direct the fire of his battery until permitted to share in the shouts of final victory. Contrary to all expectation, the wounded man's life has been spared, and he was about to be rewarded by the happy consummation of a long-cherished attachment with the beautiful and amiable lady who is to share his titles and honors while she continues and relays his sufferings.—Bost. Traveller.

A Miser to some Purpose.—The fortune left by the late Baron Dietrich, of Vienna, to his grandson, Prince Falkenau, amounting to eighteen millions of dollars, ($9,000,000). There were found in the cellar 22 bags, each containing 1,000 ducats in gold, and in different chest securities out of date and lost for a sum of 180,000 florins. This practice of hoarding gold is very common in Austria, where the paper currency is greatly depreciated.

Fugitive Slave in Michigan.—Michigan having refused the use of its prisons to the courts of the United States for the imprisonment of slaves, the U. S. District Court there has sent its grand jury to examine into the necessity for the erection of a jail for such cases.

A New Tie.—A poor widow was asked how she became so much attached to a certain neighbor and replied that she was bound to him by several cords of wood which he had sent to her during the hard winters.

THE ADAMS SENTINEL

GETTYSBURG:

MONDAY, NOV. 5, 1865.

It will be observed in our advertising columns, that a meeting of Ladies is to be held at McCaughey's Hall to-night, to make arrangements for a Fair to raise funds to have a pleasant walk to the Cemetery. Whenever the Ladies take any thing of this kind in hand, it must succeed; and we may consider that walk as one of the 'to-be's.'

We learn with pleasure, that young Mr. HALL, who was stabbed at Emmitsburg by Myers, is in a fair way of recovery. He has been removed to his father's residence near this place. He still suffers considerably, but his symptoms for recovery are all favorable.

Fire.

A two-story frame dwelling house in Abbottstown, occupied by Mr. Wm. Gitt, was consumed by fire on last night week.—

A good deal of Furniture was saved, but in a damaged condition. It is thought the fire originated from a stove-pipe. No insurance.

F Gettysburg Railroad.

An Engineering corps, under the superintendence of Messrs. Taylor and Irvin, of Chester county, commenced a new survey of the route of the Railroad on Thursday last. They are exploring the country with the view of having a more northern route, if possible, than the previous one surveyed.—

Assuming, then, the open sea to exist, as described, how are we to account for it?

All the explorers have encountered vast and almost impassable barriers of ice, "from Greenland's icy mountains" to within four hundred miles of the Pole; and from that point, looking northward, they saw an open sea as far as the eye could reach! This is the most surprising of all the discoveries in these voyages. Why should the zone between 70 and 80 north latitude be packed with ice, and the area beyond 80 and up to the Pole present an open sea free of ice? This is the question; and it seems to be one of the most curious problems presented to mankind.—Nat. Int.

A Ghostly Spectacle.

It is almost incredible to state the loss of the Russians in Sebastopol alone; thousands and thousands of dead bodies purify the air, and, indeed, almost the earth. I have been to see Sebastopol, and to describe the state of it, is, indeed, utterly impossible; it is a frightful den; the last two bombardments have made frightful havoc in the town; it can only be compared to a sieve, it is so riddled with the shot and shell. The buildings look quite perfect from our batteries, but once near you find them nothing but mere shells; nothing remains of the inside but confused piles of rubbish; no staircase, no floors, nothing remains except an unbroken nail, nor is there a single door or window to be seen in any of them.

Walking through the town, wherever you could turn, nothing but dead bodies piled on top of each other met the eye, and a horrid such saluted the nose; and what was more shocking still, there were caskets filled with arms, legs, hands, toes, and fingers piled regularly away in heaps.—*Letter from Sebastopol.

Food in France.

It is stat'd that measures are in progress all over France to provide and cheapen the food for the poorer classes. The Municipal Council of Orleans has voted $60,000 for the works of public utility, and for the distribution of bread tickets. In the department of Loire, the wealthy people have formed a commission for the purchase of rice wholesale in the seaports, and selling at reduced rates to the poor. At Marseilles a similar association is importing oxen and selling them at cost. The manufacturers in different parts furnish their workmen with bread at a low rate.

Privileges of the Confessional.—A trial was held in Richmond, Va., a few days ago, of John Cronin, for the murder of his wife for unfaithfulness; her marriage vows.—He had inflicted such injuries as to cause her death, but when there was no immediate danger of that event, she had confessed to her priest, in the presence of her husband, that the charge against her by her husband was untrue. The statement made in the sacramental confession the priest declined to divulge, as it was not consistent with his duty as a Catholic minister.—Knowledge obtained in his civil capacity, as an individual and citizen, he would freely impart, but as questioned in his capacity as a Catholic minister he was bound to keep the secrets of the confessional. Not even the Pope himself could induce him to violate that secrecy, though death were the penalty for refusal. The court sustained the witness.—He had inflicted such injuries as to cause her death, but when there was no immediate danger of that event, she had confessed to her priest, in the presence of her husband, that the charge against her by her husband was untrue. Not even the Pope himself could induce him to violate that secrecy, though death were the penalty for refusal. The court sustained the witness.—He had inflicted such injuries as to cause her death, but when there was no immediate danger of that event, she had confessed to her priest, in the presence of her husband, that the charge against her by her husband was untrue. The statement made in the sacramental confession the priest declined to divulge, as it was not consistent with his duty as a Catholic minister.—Knowledge obtained in his civil capacity, as an individual and citizen, he would freely impart, but as questioned in his capacity as a Catholic minister he was bound to keep the secrets of the confessional.
